BELLE GLADE - Palm Beach County Sheriff's and Florida Highway Patrol officers are expecting more arrests and recoveries of stolen vehicles as a result of an investigation into a purported stolen vehicle ring.

According to a press release prepared by Major Frank Fogleman, commander of the Glades sub-station of the Sheriff's Office, and Sergeant Bill Driggers of the Florida Highway Patrol, two individuals were arrested and 14 stolen cars and trucks were recovered recently as part of the 90 day investigation.

The approximate value of the vehicles is about $81,000 according to the release.

The recovered vehicles include a 1982 Chevrolet Corvette, a 1975 Corvette and 1972 Corvette, a 1979 Ford four-wheel drive pick-up, a 1978 Chevrolet four-wheel drive pick-up, a 1978 Oldsmobile, two 1976 Oldsmobiles, a 1978 Chevrolet Camaro, a 1976 Buick, a 1975 Buick, a 1974 Buick, a 1978 Pontiac Firebird and a 1978 or 1979 Ford van.

Most of the vehicles were stolen from the

Making a car theft-resistant

"How do you save your vehicle from the clutches of an automobile thief?
If you're dealing with a "shopping to order" type ring of the type local enforcement agencies are investigating, there isn't much you can do.

"Hope the guy doesn't have a shopping list that matches your car," said Detective Steve Haller of the Glades sub-station of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department.

He cited several other methods car owners can use to hinder would-be car thieves, especially the type stealing a car for "joy-riding" purposes.

When parking at a shopping center or other business area, Haller recommends backing into the parking space. This makes it difficult for thieves to pull an automobile out of the lot with a tow-truck. They would have to detach the car and disengage the transmission or break the locking device on automatic transmissions to get the car to move, he said.

greater West Palm Beach area, but one was stolen from the Glades and two from the Miami area.

Apparently, the individuals involved in the ring would purchase inoperable automobiles and sell them, remove the engine or other useful parts, but retain the title and Vehicle Identification Number plates that are placed in the dashboard and inside door panels of most late model automobiles.

A similar automobile would be stolen. The VIN would be removed from the stolen vehicle and the VIN from the junked vehicle placed in it.

The automobile would then be sold. The ring would have made money off the sale of the parts of the junked automobile and the stolen automobile.

Sheriff's Detective Steve Haller said the ring was "shopping to order."

"You might go to the mall to buy a new shirt. Well these people would go to the mall to find a new car," he said. "It's lucrative. It's an extremely lucrative business."

Police have arrested two individuals on charges stemming from the investigation.

Roberto Basilio Ramos, 21, of Okeechobee, has been charged with dealing in stolen property, a first degree felony and is in jail under $20,000 bond. Haller said a court has determined that he isn't indigent and has to pay for his trial.

Council reverses itself, will hire 9th cop

By JEFF BROWN
PAHOKEE - The Pahokee Police Department gained authorization to hire a ninth officer Tuesday night after Officer Mike Harlow spoke to the city council on its earlier decision not to authorize the filling of the new position.

Only Councilman William E. McKinstry voted against hiring a ninth officer, although he then voted in favor of hiring an individual recommended by Police Chief Carmen "Skeets" Salvatore III.

Harlow objected to comments McKinstry made at the April 26 meeting concerning the conduct of the Pahokee police. McKinstry successfully blocked the chief's attempt to hire a ninth officer at that meeting when he said he often saw officers who were supposed to be on night shift sitting at the station drinking coffee and watching television.

"I've forgot how many times I've been categorized as a lounge lizard, but I've gotten tired of it," said Harlow.

"Number one, I don't watch television. Number two, I don't smoke. Number three, I don't drink coffee and number four I don't live at the station."

"I do remember that you do chew tobacco and you spit in an ashtray once which I think is very, very nasty," McKinstry said.

"I gave up chewing. You smoked then and I find tobacco smoke much more offensive than you find my spitting," responded Harlow. "I've seen you four times in the last year."

"I try to stay clear of you. I have no use for you," said McKinstry.

"And I don't have any for you," said Harlow.

Harlow listed some of the arrests he made or helped make in recent months while on duty.

The list included several burglary arrests and an apprehension of several robbery suspects after a high-speed chase through the city.

"I don't keep track of what the other officers do but I'm sure they are equally busy," he said.

He pointed out that according to the city ordinance, all city employees except police and firefighters receive time-and-half pay for overtime.

He said that police and firefighters, to qualify for overtime wages, must work an "unreal amount of hours over a month."

He said the department could actually use a tenth man, and that the eight man department will be stretched thin during summer vacations.

The city council reconsidered its action of April 26 and voted 4-1 to authorize the hiring of a ninth officer. It later voted 5-0 to authorize Salvatore to offer the job to an individual the council had previously interviewed.

"I'm gonna lose money when you hire a ninth man and I'm glad of it," said Harlow of the resulting reduction in hours he will have if a ninth officer does start work at the Pahokee Police Department.

Randy Prescott delivered the salutatorian address.

Glades Central and Pahokee High Schools' graduation ceremonies will be June 8.

PMDC pact wins approval

PAHOKEE - The Pahokee City Council Tuesday night narrowly approved an agreement with the Pahokee Marina Development Corporation over Mayor Duncan Padgett's objections.

The five member council voted 3-2 on three motions designed to execute the agreement without the mayor's signature.

Councilmen Ronnie Graydon and William E. McKinstry voted against the proposal and the motions while Councilmen Jon Mock, Ada Bush, and Walter Rashley voted in favor of the agreement.

Padgett said he objected to leasing the Pahokee Marina for fifty years and said he also felt the city wasn't being treated fairly in the rental terms of the agreement.

The council and corporate representatives decided in a workshop session Monday, May 23, to slightly change some of the terms.

Instead of receiving one percent of all gross receipts over one million dollars, the city will receive four percent.

The city also included a provision requiring PMDC to retain a $.75 fee for fishing on the breakwater. Any increase must be approved by the council.

The agreement doesn't become binding until several contingencies are met, including the resolution of the lease William Joiner still holds on the breakwater facility.

Padgett said he felt the city should resolve the Joiner lease before entering into an agreement with PMDC. He added that he wouldn't sign the agreement as it stands.

"I'd resign as mayor of the city of Pahokee before I'd put my name on a 50 year lease for that small amount of money," said Padgett.

He asked how long the investors would give the city to solve the problems with Joiners lease on the facility before they pulled out and the corporation's attorney said there was no time limit to the city's ability to resolve that issue.

The corporation Monday night gave the city until May 31 to approve the agreement or the investors threatened to pull out of the project.

Padgett asked the corporation's attorney, Andy Helgesen, if the investors would still be around in three years when Joiner's lease expired if there was no other way for the city to get out of the arrangement.

Helgesen said the investors wouldn't be available in three years.

"I hope not," said Padgett. Graydon and McKinstry also expressed concern over the income portion of the agreement. They both stated they supported the corporation and its plans but felt the city should receive more money in rent and

Firm receives award for plant plan

BELLE GLADE - The water treatment plant currently under construction in Belle Glade recently received national recognition when the designers, Briley, Wild and Associates, Inc., received one of seven Grand Awards from the American Consulting Engineers Council.

The design of the treatment plant involves using controlled amounts of ozone to transform raw water from Lake Okeechobee into water "so pure, clean and sweet it will rival spring water in quality," according to Belle Glade Mayor Thomas L. Altman.

Wild said Lake Okeechobee represents a poor raw water source for consumption and added that the ozonation technology was an expensive gamble that the Belle Glade City Commission made possible through its support.

The process is supposed to remove excessive levels of trihalomethanes (THMs) from the water. THM, an "unavoidable by-product of conventional treatment of water with chlorine," are a suspected carcinogen.

The ozone is supposed to react with the portions of the organic molecules present in water from Lake Okeechobee that react with the chlorine to form THMs.

A proto-type plant was designed and water was run through it. The process produced a volume of water without discoloration and with a THM level below that prescribed by federal regulations.

Bush new council chairman

PAHOKEE - Ada Bush was elected president of the Pahokee City Council Tuesday night, May 24, by her fellow councilmen.

"Bush is a first-term councilman serving in her second year of a two-year term."

She succeeds Jon Mock as president. Mock served one year as council president.

Councilman William E. McKinstry moved Bush to be elected president. Only Mock voted against the motion.

McKinstry then moved that Councilman Ronnie Graydon, another first term member of the board, be elected president pro-temp.

His election carried unanimously.

Bush was also appointed head of the administration department and Graydon was appointed head of the utilities department.

Mock was elected to head the public works department and McKinstry was returned to his seat as head of the police department.

Walter Rashley, the newest member of the council, was named head of the parks and recreation department.

"AND WHAT NOT"

DOPE for those nagging pains

Do you suffer from nagging pains? Is there someone at your house who nags, nags, nags? Nags someone to take out the garbage. Nags everybody to turn out lights, pick up their dirty clothes, mow the lawn, feed the dog, get off the phone, wash the car, and on, and on. Is it you, Mom?

If it is, we can bring you instant relief from being a pain in the lower back through the Dewing Occupational Paraphrase Exchange (DOPE) program. It's economical, fast-acting, and can be frozen to serve as needed.

You see, Mom, your basic problem is that yours is a lone voice in a wilderness — home: the house that would shine 600 watts bright in the night through a lawn 20 feet high, surrounded by howling cats and dogs and redolent with last month's decaying leftovers if it weren't for your nagging. But while you talk in Homespeak, your family on-ly-listens to Jobspeak or Schoolspeak. DOPE can teach you to clean up your language.

In Lesson One you'll learn to deal with the most difficult problem: your husband. If he is guilty of all or some of the cited shortcomings at home but doesn't: (a) leave his dirty socks around the office or beer cans on his desk; (b) tell the boss he'll get around to doing something about anything later; or (c) is known down at the shop for never being able to remember where he's left his pencil, his calculator, his big screwdriver with the yellow handle, or the blueprints he was working with last week, the DOPE plan can help you.

You've probably heard the boys he works with call him "Ole Tidy Tim and Eveready" on the job. And does anybody nag him? Sure. But impersonally. And what's more, they write it out in the words he understands best: Jobspeak.

But don't take our word for it. Read what some of our satisfied customers have to say.

Mrs. J.Q.Z. of Murphysburg, MI, wrote us recently: "I can't praise the DOPE enough. My husband is an attorney who would never take time to listen to me, much less give me an answer. Then I turned to DOPE. Now I leave him messages on long yellow sheets of paper that always begin: 'Come now the Plaintiff who alleges...' And I always get an answer. He can't resist. And I don't mind that they read: 'Fur-suant to...' Thank you, DOPE."

Mrs. J.U.G. of Curling Pin, PA, is married to the mayor. "Using the DOPE method," she wrote us, "I began leaving him job reminders worded like resolutions. 'WHEREAS, the guest room toilet is nonfunctioning and no plumber will make house calls for less than $50; and

"WHEREAS, the defective screw can be replaced at a cost of less than 25 cents through any hardware store on base;

"NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the mayor's wife does hereby direct the Mayor of the City of Curling Pin to make said purchase at the earliest possible date."

"TESTIMONY WHEREOF,..." Bless you, DOPE.

Some of our satisfied customers find it more effective to post notices. Such was the case of Mrs. S.O.P., a military wife, who told us her husband has never left the cellar light on since she posted a sign next to the door: "All personnel upon exiting the stairway giving access to the lower stage area shall immediately upon exiting, extinguish all lights leading into and out of said area by depressing the button located at the west side of the door. The button is that identified with the marking 'ON' (in the upright position) and 'OFF' (in the downright position). Failure to follow these orders will be reported immediately to the demanding light meter."

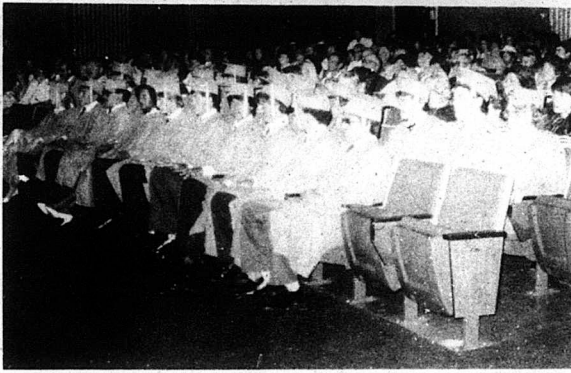

So, nag no more, my lady. Join the DOPE plan today and learn Jobspeak. Learn Schoolspeak in Lesson Two, and much, much more in the next 77 lessons.

And for you men who have difficulties with Homespeak and can't seem to communicate effectively with your wives, try our Special Introductory Offer: No message goes unheeded that begins: "Your mother called and she says you should..."

A bittersweet time...

Late May-early June is always a bittersweet time of the year.

Fresh-cheeked high school seniors graduate and go into the world, a bittersweet experience in itself.

Their world will never again be the same. They leave behind what they someday may recall as the carefree good old days for a future of freedom, opportunity, and growth.

There will be disappointments and achievements ahead, as there are for all of us. Part of growing up is finding the pitfalls on our own. Bittersweet to us is Memorial Day, the time of the year when we remember the men and women who gave their lives for this country.

Ten years have passed since the United States pulled out of Vietnam. A decade seems like a long time for anyone just graduating from high school.

But most of us remember sons, brothers, nephews, uncles, fathers, neighbors, classmates, or friends who died in the service of our country. Most were scarcely older than the seniors graduating with the Class of 1983.

Their life helped to brighten our own and their deaths saddened us still.

It is for this reason that we pause to remember them, and the young men and women who died in Korea, the Second World War, the First World War, and all of the other wars that our country has fought.

All too often young people have been called on to help preserve the freedom we enjoy in this country. The generation of Americans who fought the Second World War literally saved the world. There was no one else up to the task.

Without their sacrifice, there would be no democracy today.

In Korea and Vietnam Americans showed the willingness to serve, without thanks, without recognition, and in a no-win situation. Perhaps some day their sacrifice will be seen as the noblest of all.

Memorial Day is Monday, May 30. Take a few minutes then to think on the significance of the day.

Council reverses itself, again

The Pahokee City Council reversed itself on two issues this week.

After deciding in April that a ninth police officer wasn't going to be hired, it rescinded that decision Tuesday night and voted 4-1 to hire that officer.

It changed its mind for the second time on the Pahokee Marine Development Corporation agreement. After approving the pact with the corporation early this year, it revoked its approval of the document in March. Now, about two and a half months later, it decided to approve what is essentially the same document.

We aren't going to judge the wisdom of the PMDC agreement. Only time can tell whether the agreement even becomes operable or if it was beneficial for the city.

When a dealing with a project of that sort, risks must be taken. It's difficult to judge such a deal until both sides have had the opportunity to live up to their end of the agreement.

We think the council's decision to hire a ninth officer for the police force was a good move though. Crime fighting is an essential service taxing citizens have the right expect.

We don't think an eight man police force can adequately do the job all the time. Vacations and illness can reduce the number on the force to a point where officers are overworked and tired, not working at their peak.

A ninth officer is a much needed addition.

While we criticized the council for waffling on issues and seemingly never sticking by its decision, this is one reversal we think was necessary.

Missionary Day May 29

BELLE GLADE -- Members of the Mount Zion A.M.E. Missionaries of Belle Glade will be celebrating missionary day, Sunday, May 29 at 11 a.m. and again at 6 p.m. The morning speaker will be James Allen.

assistant pastor of the First Born Church of the Living God. The evening speaker will be Edna McClen-don of Mount Calvary Baptist Church. The services are open to the public.

Clearwater chief to assist in local fire evaluation

BELLE GLADE — The fire chief from Clearwater, Florida, will be in town for the next day or two to help evaluate the fire protection and fire department manpower needs of Belle Glade.

City Manager W.E. "Tom" Strang told the Belle Glade City Commission Monday night, May 23 that Roy Goodwin, a firefighting veteran with over 30 years experience with the Clearwater fire department, would be visiting the city and studying the department Thursday, May 26 and Friday, May 27.

The study is one of the administration's responses to a commission request that the city's fire protection service be evaluated.

Strang said he put out the word that the city was seeking a consulting firm to study its fire protection services, but had no takers yet.

He added that Fire Chief Pete Webb had formed a group of citizens into a committee that was willing to assist in the evaluation and study.

Strang delayed asking the commission to take formal action in appointing that committee until Goodwin's report was complete.

Goodwin first became affiliated with the Clearwater department when the city had a population of about 9,000. Since then, the city has grown to about 100,000. Strang told the commission. He compared the growth of Clearwater to the growth of Belle Glade.

The Belle Glade fire department is responsible for protecting a city which stretches from Duda Road in the north-east to the marina in the north west and the Belle Glade Bowl on SR 80 in the south.

There was some speculation at a previous meeting that a sub-station may be necessary.

The administration is seeking a study and evaluation of the fire protection offered by the city department to determine what, if any changes, are necessary.

have more assurance that the marina would be developed.

"I'm not happy with it," said Padgett.

"I'm not happy with the income portion of it. There should have been more consideration given to the city's income."

"To me, the city's just not protected in this agreement," said McKinstry.

"It's a one-sided agreement as far as I'm concerned," said Padgett.

Councilman Jon Mock said he thought the biggest issue wasn't the direct income to the city from the development of the marina, but the spin-off benefits the citizens would derive from such a development. He added that under the terms of the agreement, if public access to the facility was diminished, the council could break off the agreement.

The council approved by 3-2 votes three motions, including one resolution, approving the agreement.

One of the motions authorized Council President Ada Bush to sign and execute the agreement in lieu of the mayor.

Arrest—

Geraldo Ramon Guedes, 19, of 225 NW Avenue C in Belle Glade, has been charged with grand theft and released on bond.

According to Haller, the first degree felony charge against Ramon comes from a special state law that holds a person who knowingly causes property to be stolen and sold as more liable than the person who actually commits the theft.

Three of the 14 vehicles recovered were recovered in Okeechobee County and the rest were recovered locally, according to the release.

Police started recovering automobiles and making arrests Friday, May 13, said Haller.

Police determined the vehicles were stolen by locating hidden VINs on the cars. Driggers, who investigates automobile thefts regularly with the Florida Highway Patrol, assisted the officers in locating the hidden VINs.

The automobile theft ring would alter the automobiles and trucks it stole with paint jobs and by removing or adding accessories according to the order of the buyer.

Haller cited one case where a local individual's 1982 Corvette was stolen. In a week it was altered and the purchaser drove the automobile by the original owner who didn't recognize it.

"They can be very swift and very good at it," said Haller.

There are several businesses in the area the police are aware where a person can obtain a fast paint job to an automobile, he said, adding there are several individuals in the area who own and drive stolen vehicles.

"In most cases the buyer knows that he is driving a stolen vehicle. If you get one you might want to consider driving to your local law enforcement agency and saying 'I got it.'"

Those individuals would lose the money they have invested in the automobile but would not face charges, he said.

The local law enforcement agencies will be tightening up their efforts to locate stolen vehicles, said Haller.

Patrolmen stop auto vehicles will probably start matching the VIN plates on the dashboards with the VIN plates located on the inside door panels of most cars. If those numbers don't match or one of the plates is missing, the police can impound the vehicle until they determine whether it is stolen.

The officers said the ring may be connected with other car theft operations in south Florida, but they will have to see where the investigation leads them before they could definitely make that connection.

The three month investigation included five officers from three law enforcement agencies, the Florida Highway Patrol, the Okeechobee County Sheriff's Office and the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office.

Haller was assisted by Detective Paul Copeland and Detective Jesse Simonds, both from the Glades sub-station of the Palm Beach Sheriff's Office.

Plant—

The full-scale plant capable of producing eight million gallons of water a day is now being constructed.

Briley, Wild and Associates estimate that as many as 90 percent of the nation's municipal water systems could benefit from the technology developed by the company.

"I'm frankly very awed by the stature of this award," said Altman at the awards ceremony.

Briley, Wild's design was chosen from among 120 entries at the competition.

A 21-member panel of judges representing private industry, government agencies, design and construction publications and engineering education decided upon the winners.

The projects were judged upon their engineering, economic and social value.

Briley, Wild's Belle Glade project is the first application of ozone technology to remove excessive levels of THMs from the water.

Cars—

He and Sergeant Bill Driggers of the Florida Highway Patrol also said that not only is it a good idea to lock the car doors and take the keys with you, but pointed a Florida statute making it illegal to leave a car with the keys in it.

Major Frank Fogleman of the Glades sub-station of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department said that those driving expensive cars may also want to purchase burglar alarm for their vehicles because the noise they create tend to scare away thieves in crowded parking lots.

According to Fogleman, police haven't had much luck in recent years in their efforts to combat car thefts and locate stolen vehicles.

In 1980, he said police were able to recover 90 percent of the stolen vehicles nationwide. Now, they recover about 45 percent of the stolen vehicles.

Car thieves are getting much more professional at their craft, the officers said.

Fogleman said the car theft industry has blossomed into a $1.7 billion annual illegal racket.

A vehicle is stolen every 26 seconds in the United States, said Fogleman.

In 1982, Florida law enforcement officials recovered 1,424 stolen autos while a total of 158,019 stolen autos are still missing.

THE THREE first place winners of the bowling league for the West Area of the Palm Beach County School Board were the Brown Angels from Rosenwald Elementary School. From left is Bobbie Jones, Mary Stinson and Jennie M. Green. The games were Friday, May 6 at Belle Glade Bowl.

Golf course to reopen Tuesdays

BELLE GLADE - Starting Tuesday, May 31, the golf course at the Belle Glade Country Club will be open seven days a week.

The city commission authorized the change in club operation Monday night, May 23 after Billy Cowart, one of the operators of the Country Club's restaurant and lounge portion, requested the course be opened Tuesdays.

The course had been closed every Tuesday throughout the summer to facilitate growing of the crops, according to John Wright, the golf professional at the club.

He said the grounds are usually watered and fertilized during the off-days, but added that it wouldn't be much trouble to conduct those operations if the course was opened.

"We've been watering more often anyway because it's been so dry," he said.

Wright said he had been before the commission since he started at the club and successfully sought permission to open the club during Tuesdays in the winter months.

"I think it's worked out well," he said. "I would have to say the golf course could be opened on Tuesdays. We could do our maintenance with it open. I like to see us cooperate with Billy on this."

He said the only problem he could foresee would be in scheduling employees. He said he may have to hire some extra help if the club is to open for an extra day during the summer months because of the increase in number of daylight hours.

He added that since Cowart took over the club in April, the golf business has increased at the club.

"I feel like we can work around the golfers. I do not object," Wright said.

"Personally, I would like to see us be open on Tuesdays," said Mayor Thomas L. Altman. He said he would also like to see the city assist Wright financially in keeping the club open. He asked Wright to meet with City Manager W.E. "Tom" Strang and Recreation Director Johnny Rutledge to determine how the city could assist in opening the club for the extra hours.

Tentative Freedom Festival schedule

PAHOKEE - The Pahokee Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors have prepared a tentative schedule of events for the Freedom Festival. The festival is supposed to include events scattered throughout the city from June 25 to July 3. It will culminate at the Pahokee Marina Monday, July 4. The Freedom Festival Golf Tournament will be played at the Belle Glade Country Club June 25.

Thursday, June 30, the curtain will go up on the play "If Mamma Only Knew," at the Prince Theatre. The play is sponsored by the Xi Beta Tau club.

The play will be performed the next evening also.

The chamber is sponsoring a one-pitch softball tournament July 1-3 in an effort to raise funds for the festival.

The Elks Club will be the site of the Freedom Festival Dance July 2 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Topaz from Orlando will provide the music. The next day, the Pahokee Ministerial Association will conduct a religious service on the dike.

The festival will conclude Monday evening, July 4, after a day long celebration that is supposed to include children's games and a ski show.

A tent will be set up on the dike and food and arts and crafts booths will be placed under it.

The board authorized President Diane Hall to negotiate with two bands to provide entertainment at the festival July 4.

The festival will end with a fireworks display from the breakwater.

The board of directors will be meeting again June 6 to discuss plans for the festival.

Murder leads to arrests in Miami

The discovery of a murdered man in a freezer in a canal south of South Bay March 14 has resulted in the apprehension of two men in Miami Sunday, May 22.

Police are still seeking the identity of the man's murderers.

According to Detective Sergeant Mike Gauger of the Glades Sub-station of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office, Detectives Tom Hagen and Rick Radford determined that the murdered man, George N. Vios, had two associates and began tracking them down.

Both of the associates went by aliases. One was identified as George, but his last name varied with the wind change," said Gauger. Eventually, Hagen and Radford determined that George's actual name was George R. Studnicka, 40, of Miami.

Studnicka was apparently wanted on warrants issued by the United States Marshall on behalf of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the United States Treasury Department.

There was also a warrant issued by Franklin County for Studnicka on marijuana trafficking charges.

The second associate was only known as Jerry, until police identified him as Jerry Schocket, 42, also of Miami.

Eventually, police traced Schocket and Studnicka to a condominium in Miami just off of Biscayne Blvd., called the Quayside Towers.

The Palm Beach County Sheriff-Of-ficers, Metro-Dade and United States Treasury officers set up surveillance of the two with the assistance of the security personnel at the condominium.

One of the two was observed as he left the building and travelled to a public telephone where Gauger said he talked with the suspect and identified him as Studnicka.

Studnicka went back to his apartment and a special Metro-Dade unit was called to the scene to assist in the apprehension.

Gauger said about 30 officers were present when they decided to make the arrests.

They were refused entry and two women left who confirmed that Studnicka and Schocket were in the apartment.

Studnicka was observed trying to escape from the sixth floor apartment by dropping onto balconies on the floors below him. He was apprehended on a fourth floor balcony.

Schocket was apprehended in the apartment.

A search warrant was obtained and the residence searched.

Inside police found about one pound of a white powder believed to be cocaine, several freebasing kits, a large quantity of qualudes, and 12 weapons including gas grenades, machine guns, teflon coated bullets and a brief case that stored a pair of gloves, a MAC 10 .45 calibre machine gun with several clips of teflon coated bullets, several commando knives, a silencer and gas grenades.

Studnicka was later discovered to have some handcuff keys concealed in the waistband of his pants and the seams of his underwear.

Belle Glade supports 4 cent gasoline tax

BELLE GLADE -- The Belle City Commission Monday night, May 23, made Belle Glade the second member of the Tri-City League to officially voice its support for the proposed four-cent gasoline tax currently being considered by the Palm Beach County Commission.

South Bay's City Commissioners unanimously adopted a similar resolution Tuesday, May 17, in support of the gasoline tax which would be used by the county and municipalities to improve the condition of county roads.

Pahokee, the only other member of the Tri-City League, hasn't met since the league voted to support efforts by Commissioners Billy J. Bailey and Dennis Koehler to have the county commission adopt a four-cent gasoline tax.

The league voted in support of a tax to be levied without a referendum.

The county commission this week was scheduled to consider a proposal which would levy the four-cent tax for a year with a referendum scheduled for March 1984.

If the results of the referendum were positive, the gasoline tax would continue. If it were negative the tax would be dropped after one year and the proceeds derived from that year would be allocated in accordance with a formula the commission has already decided upon.
